Industrial train companies, aka Burlington Northern, have priority over the use of the tracks, and already significantly delay the Amtrak passenger train routes. Increasing the coal train traffic for the ^{Proposed} Gateway Terminal would ~~purportedly~~ make it far worse to provide ^{limited} train commute access to the public, which is a valued asset and alternative to ~~the~~ driving cars, an already expensive, environment wasteful mode of transportation.

I have lived in South Bellingham - Fairhaven area - for 30 years, and watching 10 times the current train traffic going through my neighborhood, town, bay, and the beautiful Chuckanut mountains loaded w/ tons of coal would be incredibly detrimental to our air quality and our health, particularly respiratory health. Is there a way to seal the train cars holding the coal so that they are not emitting tons of coal dust in the air? Either way, there is no way I support the increase in coal train traffic through Bellingham and the surrounding areas. I am fully against it.
